

The power of sustainability: Nick H. at TEDx Monroe Correctional Complex

Published on Apr 9, 2014

From the unique perspective of a worm farmer behind bars, Nick shares how sustainable programs have the power to unlock untold potential.

Nick has been a resident of Monroe Correctional Complex for the past 11 years. He is an avid outdoorsman and enjoys hunting, fishing, camping and hiking. A self-described environmentalist, he has been known to hug a tree or two. After taking a permaculture class a few years ago, Nick shifted his career track into sustainable practices and is currently employed as a worm farmer.

About TEDx, x = independently organized event

In the spirit of ideas worth spreading, TEDx is a program of local, self-organized events

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7DCofMA9eQA&index=12&list=PLsRNoUx8w3rPvdYZC6vczh8Lw5-VowoEz>

that bring people together to share a TED-like experience. At a TEDx event, TEDTalks video and live speakers combine to spark deep discussion and connection in a small group. These local, self-organized events are branded TEDx, where x = independently organized TED event. The TED Conference provides general guidance for the TEDx program, but individual TEDx events are self-organized.* (*Subject to certain rules and regulations)

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7DCofMA9eQA&index=12&list=PLsRNoUx8w3rPvdYZC6vczh8Lw5-VowoEz>